FOREWORD

Approximately 5,000 men and women have served as Members of Parliament for the Province of Upper Canada (1792 to 1841), Canada West in the United Province of Canada (1841 to 1867), and the Province of Ontario (1867 to 1984). In the past, the identification or verification of a particular member, legislature, or electoral district has proved to be a tedious and time-consuming task for researchers in Ontario's political history because the information is widely scattered in a number of sources. It is to facilitate such research that Legislators and Legislatures of Ontario has been compiled. Publication of this three volume reference work constituted the Legislative Library, Research and Information Services' contribution to the Bicentennial of Ontario being celebrated during 1984.

The information collected for this reference guide is the result of months of intensive and painstaking research by Debra Forman, a librarian on the staff of the Information and Reference Services section of the Legislative Library. The Library is pleased to publish this work which will fill a long-felt need in the reference collections of politicians, political scientists, historians and others who have occasion to study the legislative history of Ontario.
